

Best Film Not Playing at a Theater Near You

December 16, 2016–December 19, 2016

The Roy and Niuta Titus Theaters

MoMA's Department of Film, in association with IFP and its quarterly publication Filmmaker, brings you highlights from the festival circuit that have yet to be picked up for theatrical distribution, along with other discoveries, from visual artists working in the moving image to the latest indies not available in theaters. Responding to the proliferation of digital distribution platforms, this series is dedicated to bringing New York audiences conversations around independent cinema and in-person engagement with filmmakers. Now in its 11th year, Best Film Not Playing at a Theater Near You has become an invaluable resource for any cinephile who wants to catch the newest talent in American filmmaking on the big screen.

Filmmakers take part in Q&As following selected screenings.

The films included in this year's Best Film Not Playing at a Theater Near You are listed below. Film information and screening schedule available here.

The Nine
Hotel Dallas
All This Panic
The Pearl
Free in Deed

Organized by Sophie Cavoulacos, Assistant Curator, Department of Film, The Museum of Modern Art; Scott Macaulay, Editor, and Vadim Rizov, Managing Editor, Filmmaker magazine; and Milton Tabbot, Senior Director, Programming, IFP.
