Family Films
November 8

Through Thick and Thin: Forging Friendships
Recommended for kids ages 4 and up and their adult companions

At MoMA’s Family Films, enjoy classic live-action and animated films, engaging discussions with a Museum educator, and suggestions for follow-up activities in the Museum’s galleries.

Low Down Underground. 2000. USA. Directed by Elanna Nicole Allen. Quentin, a rambunctious nine-year-old, bursts into a New York subway car and almost runs into an elderly lady! Quentin also meets two other passengers, a blues musician and a punk, and the four become a sort of family on the subway. This unusual story of friendship is told in rap, featuring artists such as Treach (of Naughty by Nature) and Pepa (of Salt ‘n’ Pepa).

Macropolis. 2012. Great Britain. Directed by Joel Simon. Discarded from a factory production line, a toy cat and dog are determined to rejoin their fellow toys on the store shelf, forcing them to work together as they make a hazardous journey through the big city.

Rabbit and Deer. 2013. Hungary. Directed by Péter Vácz. Best friends Rabbit and Deer share everything, including a love of hot chocolate with marshmallows, but their friendship is challenged by the discovery of a third dimension.

Tickets
Admission is free. Tickets are distributed on the day of the program only, on a first-come, first-served basis.

This program is for individual families of up to two adults and up to three kids. You do not need to purchase a ticket if you are accompanying a child to this program.

Tickets will be distributed at the reception desk in The Lewis B. and Dorothy Cullman Education and Research Building, at 4 West 54th Street (near Fifth Avenue), 10:00–10:30 A.M. and 11:30 A.M.–12:00 P.M. Tickets are also distributed at the information desk in the Museum’s main lobby.
