Chosen Memories: Contemporary Latin American Art from the Patricia Phelps de Cisneros Gift and Beyond

April 30—September 9, 2023

Floor 3, The Robert B. Menschel Galleries

NEW YORK, March 22, 2023—The Museum of Modern Art presents Chosen Memories: Contemporary Latin American Art from the Patricia Phelps de Cisneros Gift and Beyond, a major exhibition that gathers approximately 65 works by Latin American artists who, over the last four decades, have looked at history as the source material for new work. On view from April 30 through September 9, 2023, this exhibition focuses on late-20th and early-21st century artworks from the transformative gifts made by the Colección Patricia Phelps de Cisneros to the Museum over the last 25 years. Videos, photographs, paintings, and sculptures are presented in dialogue with MoMA's extensive Latin American collection, recent acquisitions, a new commission, and select loans. Chosen Memories features works by 39 artists from different generations working across Latin America, including Alejandro Cesarco (Uruguay), Regina José Galindo (Guatemala), Mario García Torres (Mexico), Leandro Katz (Argentina), Suwon Lee (Venezuela), Gilda Mantilla (Peru) and Raimond Chaves (Colombia), Cildo Meireles (Brazil), Rosângela Rennó (Brazil), Mauro Restiffe (Brazil), and José Alejandro Restrepo (Colombia), among others. Chosen Memories: Contemporary Latin American Art from the Patricia Phelps de Cisneros Gift and Beyond is organized by Inés Katzenstein, Curator of Latin American Art and Director of the Patricia Phelps de Cisneros Research Institute for the Study of Art from Latin America; with Julia Detchon, Curatorial Assistant, Department of Drawings and Prints.

“The artworks in this exhibition demonstrate that some of the most relevant art of the present is conceived through investigating and retelling history in new ways,” says curator Inés Katzenstein. “This exhibition will introduce visitors to key Latin American artists working in recent decades who have engaged with the past as a means to repair histories of dispossession, reconnect with undervalued cultural legacies, and strengthen threads of kinship and belonging.”

Chosen Memories begins with a sound piece that imagines the calls of extinct birds by Naufus Ramírez-Figueroa and Rosângela Rennó's Wedding Landscape (1996), which addresses the mnemonic and material challenges of collective memory. Together these works introduce visitors to the exhibition's three main sections: Returns, Reverberations, and Kinships.

In Returns, artists reexamine and reframe visuals of the Latin American landscape, as seen in works such as José Alejandro Restrepo's Paso del Quindío I (1992) and Leandro Katz's photographic series The Catherwood Project (1985–95), both based on images produced by European explorers in the region. A grouping of works in this section, including Regina José Galindo's Looting (2010), show how colonial views of the landscape and its natural resources continue to shape economies of the present.

The next section, Reverberations, brings together works by artists who revisit undervalued or forgotten cultural heritages. This section features a recent video by Las Nietas de Nonó titled FOODTOPIA: Después de todo territorio (2020), as well as Je ne sais si c'en est la cause (2009–02), Mario García Torres's investigation of lost chapters of art history among the ruins of a Caribbean resort. Reverberations also includes drawings by artist Sheroanawë Hakihiwë depicting traditional symbols used by his Yanomami community, alongside a selection of photographs by his longtime friend Laura Anderson Barbata, documenting her experiences in the Amazon region.

Focusing on inherited and chosen family histories, the final section, Kinships, includes works that examine processes of mourning and memorialization. This section features two video works: Alejandro Cesarco's video portrait Present Memory (2009), which captures an intimate view of the artist's father during his final days; and Paulo Nazareth's Antropologia do negro II (2014), which performs a ritual to exorcise the violence of slavery in Brazil. The exhibition closes with En Passant, a newly commissioned mural by Iran do Espírito Santo that uses a degradé of vertical stripes in shades of gray as a metaphor for the effects of time and the fading of memories.

Since its founding in 1929, The Museum of Modern Art has collected, exhibited, and studied the art of Latin America. Today, MoMA's collection includes more than 5,000 works of modern and contemporary art by artists from Latin America, as well as artists of Latin American heritage, distributed across its six curatorial departments. Over the last 25 years, the Colección Patricia Phelps de Cisneros has donated more than 250 works by Latin American artists to The Museum of Modern Art. In addition to those generous donations, in 2016 the Colección Patricia Phelps de Cisneros established the Patricia Phelps de Cisneros Research Institute for the Study of Art from Latin America at MoMA. The Institute's programming includes fellowships for scholars, curators, and artists, and long-term research initiatives that aim to expand the knowledge and perspectives on Latin American modern and contemporary art.

PUBLICATION:

Chosen Memories: Contemporary Latin American Art from the Patricia Phelps de Cisneros Gift and Beyond is accompanied by a richly illustrated catalogue that brings together a diverse array of artworks whose mobilization of Latin America's varied histories animates both their politics and their poetics. An essay by curator Inés Katzenstein examines how artists working in video, photography, painting, and sculpture over the past four decades have investigated and reimagined the region's legacies, including long histories of colonialism, undervalued cultural and visual heritages, and inherited and elective kinships. 128 pages, 105 color illustrations. Hardcover, $45. ISBN: 978-1-63345-138-4. Published by The Museum of Modern Art, New York, and available at MoMA stores and online at store.moma.org. Distributed to the trade through ARTBOOK|D.A.P. in the United States and Canada, and through Thames & Hudson in the rest of the world.

AUDIO TOUR:

Guided by several artists with works on view in Chosen Memories, the exhibition playlist offers perspectives on the ideas and processes behind works in the exhibition. The playlist feature excerpts of exclusive interviews with Leandro Katz, Elena Damiani, Regina José Galindo, Laura Anderson Barbata, Armando Andrade Tudela, Francisco "Pancho" Casas Silva, and Paulo Nazareth. Available in both Spanish and English, MoMA Audio is free of charge at moma.org/audio/.
